Birgit Wittenberg is a free-lancer offering consulting services for all e-learning applications. During her 12 years of experience she has been responsible for the implementation of different e-learning concepts and tools on behalf of various customers and industries.

Birgit Wittenberg is currently working for the Public Authorities of the German federal state Lower Saxony where she initiates new e-learning projects and implements new learning products. Her projects range from the introduction of customer-specific e-learning content and live online classes to the support of complex learning processes including knowledge management and informal learning (Web 2.0).

As a graduated technical translator she takes a great interest in the language learning field. She is currently working with the Confucius Institute in Hannover where Chinese courses are being enhanced by customer-oriented as well as standard e-learning elements.
